The Huntington Library, San Marino, CA.	Gerbier's account in Dutch of the attack on his family in Guyana, by Keye, Rhenanus et al. Followed by his French verses describing these events, and purporting to relate his daughter Catharine's last words. The 'Treur-Dicht' is described as 'Gerijmt door Reynier van Buren', and does not appear in Gerbier's English version of events. The work continues with extracts from the testimony given by those involved to the Amsterdam Magistrate in Sept. 1660. Lastly, the 'Advertissement' may relate to Gerbier's plans for a further expedition. The collection of pamphlets bound together is accompanied by a Manuscript address to Charles II, to whom they were apparently to have been presented. There is also a hand written quotatiion from Matthew 5. xi. The MS sections include 'To the Kings most Excellent sacred Maestie. An humble Remonstrance concerning expedients whereby his sacred Ma.tie may increase his revenue, with greate advantage to his Loyall subiects'. This details 'the proffers of certayne Holland men'. 'Les Derniers Paroles' occurs in a Dutch version, as "De laaste woorden van Me-Joffr: Katharina Gerbier". in the Huntington copy.
